BODIES FOUND IN THE VOLKS GARTEN RUINS.

NEITHER YET IDENTIFIED-FIREMEN THINK OTHER BODIES WILL BE FOUND WHEN A

THOROUGH SEARCH OF THE

The bodies of two men were found yesterday afternoon in the rulns of the old Volks Garten. was destroyed by fire last Saturday night The building was occupied at the time by Peter Conkling's museum of the late war. After the fire was extinguished no one was reported missing to either the firemen or police, and no search was made of the ruins for bodies. It was supposed that every one in the place when the flames broke out

It is proved now, however, that at least two men perished in the fire, and, perhaps, more bodies may yet be found when a thorough search of the ruins is made. The two men found dead lay on the old stage of the Volks Garten. It looked as if the men had perished while trying to get out of the building through a window which opened into a yard from the rear of the stage. The discovery of the bodies was made by Freman Halpin, of Engine Company No. 13, who is detailed at the London Theatre. He was on duty there yesterday afternoon during the matinee. Just as it began Halpin channed to step out into the ruins. His gaze wander: it of the ruined stage, and there he saw a round object that looked like a man's head. The freman claimbered over the ruins to the stage and there found two bodies side by side. The har was burned from their scalps and their clothing was burned from their scalps and their clothing was burned partially away. One of the bodies lay face downward stretched length-wise along the rear wal of the dismantied building. At the head was a stairway which led to a window. The other body was found in a crouching position at the foot of the stairs. It appeared as if the men had lost consciousness while trying to grope their way upstairs. may yet be found when a thorough search of the had lost consciousness while trying to grope their way upstairs.

Otto Konel, the man who escaped from the fire by rushing through the front door, went to Bellevue Hospital last night to try to identify the bodies at the morgue. Konel could not identify them.

Konel says that the first explosion took place five minutes after he had entered the Garden, and that there were about fifteen people present at the time. Among them were two soldiers, to whom he had been talking. When the explosion occurred they all rushed to the front of the Garden, when another jet of flame burst through the floor in front of him. Then the crowd turned and rushed toward the back, a number of them falling over the showcases. Konel made an attempt to get out the front way, and did so, being slightly burned in his efforts. He said that if only two people have been taken out of the ruins there must be at least ten more burled in the ruins.

CHAT ABOUT PUBLIC MEN.

Congressman Paul Sorg, of Ohio, who has been ill recently, was in the city yesterday. Mr. Sorg looked far from a sick man. He ate his Thankegiving dinner with his family at the Holland House and spent the afternoon at a theatre. He had little to say about politics. When told the story that Senator Brice intended to give up his residence in Senator Brice intended to give up his residence in Ohio and come to New-York to live, and also to assist in reorganizing the Democracy of the State, Mr. Sorg made no comment further than that he had heard nothing about it. The Ohio politicians say that there has been a slight coolness between Brice and Sorg since the last campaign in Ohio. Brice wanted Sorg to accept the nomination for Governor, and as a wealthy man make a campaign that would be remembered as one in which money counted. Sorg, however, was not so inclined, and he refused to go in, and ever since that time he has been congratulating hinself on his foresight. He said that he had no idea what Mr. Reed intended to do in the way of making up his committees in the next House of Representatives, and as he was on the minority side he did not care much.

Politicians are hinting that the name of Warner Miller may be the second one on the next Republican National ticket. They argue that Harrison i hean National ticket. They argue that Harrison is pretty sure to get the nomination, or else some other Western man, and that an Eastern man will be selected to run second. Morton or Reed, so they say, would not take the second place. As an Eastern man would have to be chosen, they think that Warner Miller is the most available candidate and cite his spiendid fight on the side of Sunday laws. All the time the object of their talk is at the Fifth Avenue Hotel quietly going ahead with his work on the Nicaragua canal project. He says nothing about politics, or whether he would take Senator Hill's place in the Senate if he could get it. Mr. Miller was at the Fifth Avenue Hotel yesterday and ate his Thanksgiving dinner with his daughter.

"Depew's Chestnuts" is getting to be a stock qu Depew himself. Mr. Depew said recently, in speaking of his stories, that whenever he made a speech he heard afterward from all over the country that Depew was getting off some more of his chestnuts. Now he says that a story to be fresh must not antedate Rameses II. "It is no use to try," he says. "The brand will remain. Just before I made my speech at Carnegie Hall recently I sat down and thought out two or three new stories. They came to me out of the air. I never heard them before: I do not think that anybody else did. I do not say how good they are, because that is not the issue. After I made that speech the clippings began to come into me and I saw every now and then a reference to one of these stories and a comment upon 'Depew's chestnuts.' I cannot get away from the taint."

The steamship Seguranca, which arrived here from Havana yesterday, on November 27, in latitude 37.48, longitude 74.78, passed the mast of a schooner, which was painted white and appeared to ave been only a short time in the water. This is bout the latitude and longitude where two derelicts, asse together, were sighted, as has been reported. The Tribune. In The Tribune.

Among the passengers on the Seguranca was Miguel Tarafa, a Cuban, who was compelled to leave Cuba because he took part in the rebellion. He formerly commanded a body of insurgents of considerable size, and was captured by the Spanish. After a brief imprisonment he was liberated and banished

The recent pool formed by the agents of the steamship companies may cause steerage, and, it is said, even second-class rates, both eastward and west-ward, to be largely increased in the near future. As has already been told in The Tribune, the agreement between the Continental steamship lines will go into effect on December 4. The lines in the pool at pres-ent are the American, Cunard, White Star, Anchor and Allan-State, but it is said the question of a gen-eral agreement has been placed before the remaining transcontinental lines. It is said that at the recent conference the steamship representatives agreed to increase the stearage rates from $\tilde{V}$ to the on each ficket upon what is known as second-class or slow vessels, and at a greater percentage on the fast boats it is not likely that the pool will interfere with the present tariff for first-class passage.

REAL ESTATE. NEW-YORK

IMPORTANT CHANGES IN THE UPTOWN DRYGOODS DISTRICT.

NEIGHBORHOOD-RESULTS OF THE CONSTRUC-

The firm of M. & L. Hess, at No. 644 Broadway nas been in the real estate business in this city for the last seven years. It has negotiated many im portant transactions, and has also witnessed great changes in the progress of the reconstruction o New-York on modern lines. To a Tribune reporter Morris Hess, the head of the firm, said yesterday business of our firm is almost wholly confine to what is known as the uptown drygoods district, within the area, say, of Bleecker and Fourteenth sts., Broadway and Wooster-st. We buy, sell and thing else. The city has grown so large that it ha real estate business to confine himself to one neighborhood, to the end that he may thoroughly familiar ize himself with values, abstracts of title and the "Business property in our district is, in my judgment, held more strongly than ever before, and, in fact, values are going higher all the time, especially in the best localities. Broadway property has been especially active, and largely increased in value lately. We have recently sold a great deal of property in Broadway, and have turned it over or resold it several times within a short period. Business in Broadway below Fourteenth-st. was for many years in a dormant state, but within the last two years there has been an evident change in the conition there. Notwithstanding this apparent inac tiguous property in our district, we, three years ago thought prices were too high. It is not three years ago that we offered improved property in Broad way for sale at $75,000 a city lot, 25x100. same property will now realize 40 per cent ad vance in value. Not only has Broadway property increased in value, but property in certain nearb localities is also held in very strong hands.

"One of the reasons for this activity is the readjustment of localities for the centralization of special classes of business. When improvements began in Greene-st, some years ago, many tenants vacated Broadway for that street. Now, with the construction of larger and more commodious buildings in Broadway, tenants are returning and occupying the new structures. They were, of course, attracted to Greene-st, by reason of the increased facilities afforded, such as heating, lighting, elevators and the like. There is practically a rebuilding of Broadway going on now between Canal and Fourteenth sts. and there is a strong contrast between the unsatisfactory conditions existing five, or even three years ago, and those which prevail now. Every new building is ar improvement upon its predecessor, and tenants naturally seek buildings where they can get the best advantages. It is a noticeable fact that nearly all of the new buildings thus far erected, or in process of construction, have already been rented. This, in my judgment, demonstrates the value and importance of keeping up with the times, in tearing down old buildings and replacing them with modern structures. In streets not far from Broadway we have no difficulty in renting lofts and office room in new buildings. and replacing them with modern structures. In streets not far from Broadway we have no difficulty in renting lofts and office room in new buildings. For example, we have recently rented the entire building, 5580, at Washington Place and Washington Square to a large business concern.

The renting of offices and floor lofts for the coming year is now pretty active. This is due chiefly to the fact that old firms are moving further uptown, and that their places are being supplied, by a new class of business, which enters this district from the lower drygoods district. For instance, the wholesale hatters were formerly say, within three years—situated in Greenest, below illecekerst, but their headquarters are now north of Fourthst, and extend almost to Twelfthst. In the mean time other classes of trade are filling up the vacancles caused by these removals. We are expecting a very active realty market during the coming year.

H. W. GARRETT'S CONDITION.

John W. Garrett, the brother of Horatio Whitridge Garrett, of Baltimore, said yesterday that his brother had improved greatly during the day, and that there was no doubt that he would recover. H. W. Garrett is at the Hotel Waldorf, where he underwent the operation of having his leg removed at the thigh. As soon as he can be moved he will be taken to some place where it is quiet and restrict until he recovers sufficiently to travel, and then he will doubt-covers sufficiently to travel, and then he will called go abroad.

The circumstances surrounding this case are unusually pathetic. Mr. Garrett was graduated from college only last June, and was married a little over a month ago. His wife, who was a well-known society woman and lived at Sunmit. N. J. is with him. Mr. Garrett is only twenty-two years of age. He stood the operation heroically.

J. A. STEVENS, JR.'S. HALLUCINATIONS,

The news that John A. Stevens, Jr., had been committed to an insane asylum at Newport was re-ceived in this city with great surprise. Mr. Stevens has been in Newport for some time. He was at one time active in society affairs. He made one little dip into public life, and that settled his aspirations forever in that direction. He was at the head of one of the committees during the Columbian cele-bration in 1892. He surprised the city officials by bration in 1892. He surprised the city officials by handing in a bill for $2,000 for services. The matter at the time caused a great dea, of talk. Mr. Stevens at one time had apartments at the Kniekerbooker Club, and was we, known around town. His father, John Austin Stevens, was at one time librarian of the New-York Historical Society, and also for six years was secretary of the Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Stevens's halluchation is said to lie in the fact that he thinks he is president of the New-York Stock Exchange and also is Governor of New-York The fact of his insanity leaked out when he sent thirty telegrams recently to business men over the country in which he referred to his official capacity either as president of the Stock Exchange or as Governor of the State.
